Emergent and MeetingOne to Bring Superior Conferencing to Government

Vienna, VA – June 7, 2011 / PRnewswire – Emergent, an award-winning small business and IT solutions provider, today announced a partnership with MeetingOne, to provide Emergent public sector customers and partners with superior audio conferencing.

MeetingOne's audio conferencing tool allows government customers to reduce travel costs, provide large-scale online events and allow teleworkers to work more efficiently away from the office. Unique to MeetingOne is the ability to provide a sophisticated integrated solution to improve any organizations current teleworking capabilities.

"Emergent is pleased to announce that MeetingOne has been added to our GSA Schedule, enabling our government customers to cost effectively and smoothly purchase MeetingOne's services," said Greg Christensen, President of Emergent. "The addition of MeetingOne will only enhance our current vendor line-up by providing robust audio conferencing and excellent customer service to our customers."

"With more government agencies turning to telework, it has never been more important to provide users with audio conferencing tools," says Sophie Lal, CEO of MeetingOne. "MeetingOne's proven technology enhances each user's experience by providing a scalable solution to fit our customer's needs. We look forward to working with Emergent to bring our audio conferencing solution to reach more public sector networks."

The addition of MeetingOne to Emergent's product portfolio reinforces its mission to offer complimentary best of breed products and technologies solving mission critical government business challenges.
